The JUNIOR CLASS
of
MAUMEE VALLEY DAY SCHOOL
Presents
THE 1951 WEATHER VANE

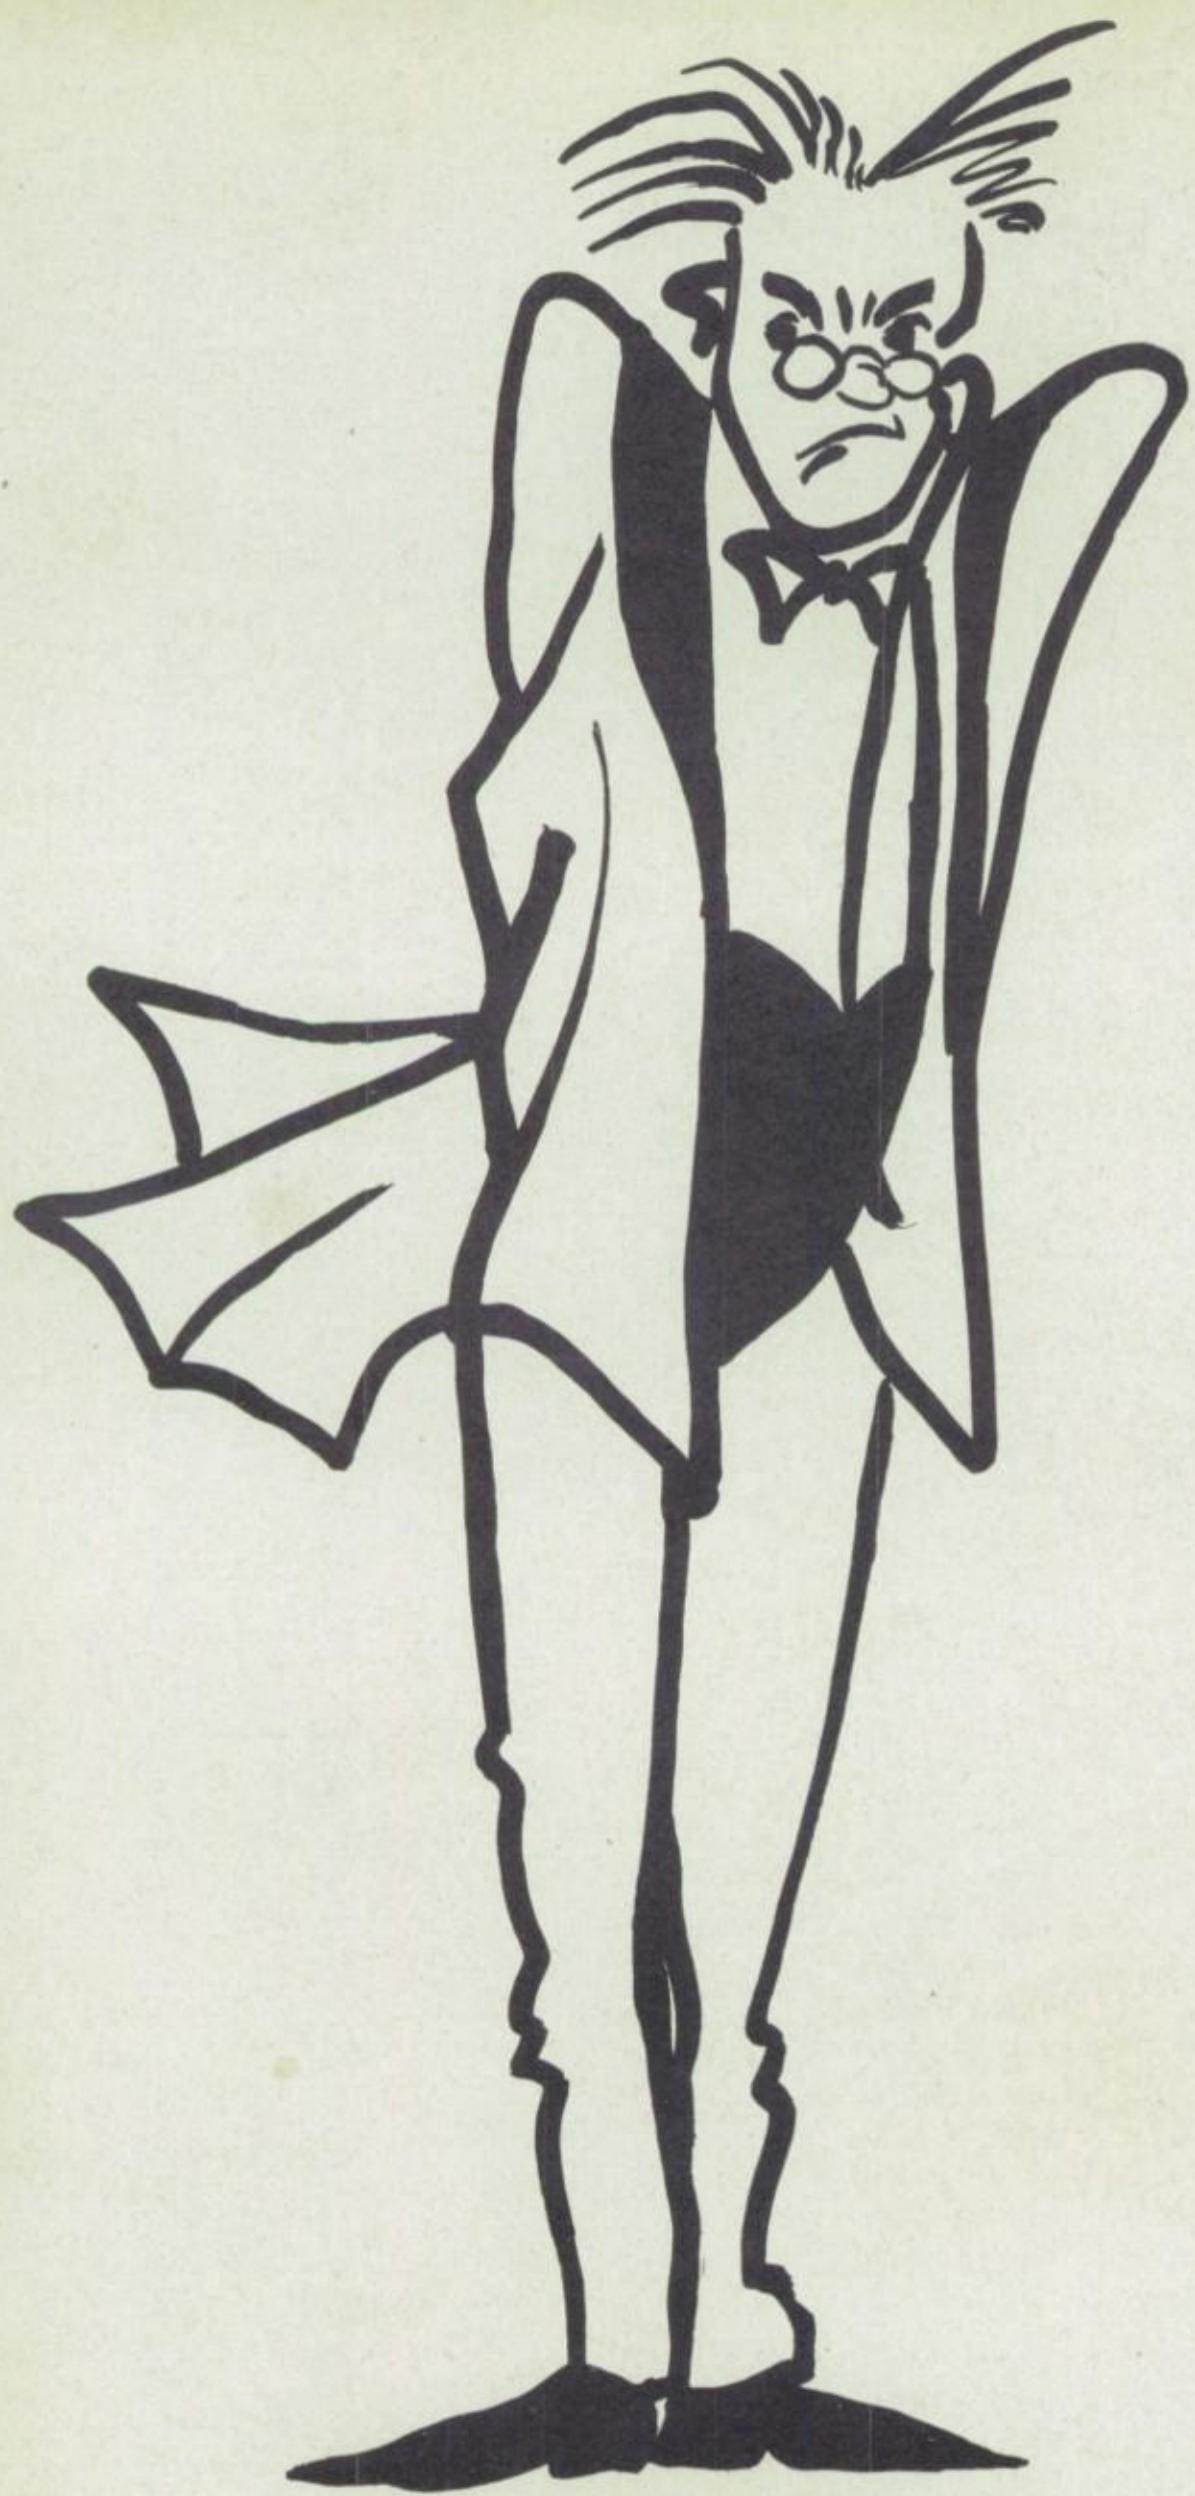

This year for the first time in Weathervane history we have a new section. It is formed of the experiences and activities enjoyed by our spirited addition to Maumee Valley—the high school boys. Each teacher has worked diligently to make our school a success coeducationally. One teacher, however, deserves special credit for his work.

For many years he has struggled along with girls' biology classes and spring vacation trips. Finally he has had an opportunity to show his ability in athletic leadership with a victorious football team, and spirited basketball players. He seems to have a remedy for every situation, an answer for every question, and a smile for every student.

To you, Mr. Pursell, we dedicate the "1951 Weathervane."

MAUMEE VALLEY COUNTRY DAY SCHOOL
MAUMEE, OHIO

WILLIS STORK, HEADMASTER

To the Students:

Each succeeding year appears to be the most important, which, of course, it is. This year, however, will take its place among such dates as 1848, 1884, 1911, and 1934, all of them representing momentous milestones in the history of our school.

Why should 1951 join this exclusive list of dates? Certainly the fact that the school became completely coeducational is of historic significance. This year, 1951, marks the first time that the enrollment has exceeded the 200-mark. And during this year the school put its first football team into interscholastic competition, to turn out a winning combination!

The year brought us another reminder of the school's origin in New York State, when we went to that region for the historic nickname of Mohawks for our athletic teams.

But to me the really significant aspects of 1950-51 have been the increased school loyalty, friendliness, and studiousness on the part of all students.

In particular this is true of our outstanding senior class, a group we shall miss greatly, but who have our every wish for a safe and happy life as they go out into a troubled world. I am sure that each of them in some manner and in some measure can help to make it a better place in which to live.

Affectionately yours,

NURSERY SCHOOL

The very young people in this picture are involved in one of their many vigorous activities. Aside from making all sorts of intriguing things from clay, their active hours at school included painting and building with blocks. When outside they had great fun playing on the swings or slides, and they took special delight in painting the fence, school, or anything that was handy, with water. The Nursery School joined forces with the Kindergarten to plant tulip bulbs which beautified our campus this Spring. When there was a hockey game that they were allowed to watch, they were in seventh heaven. We are certainly very happy to welcome these youngest students to Maumee Valley.

KINDERGARTEN

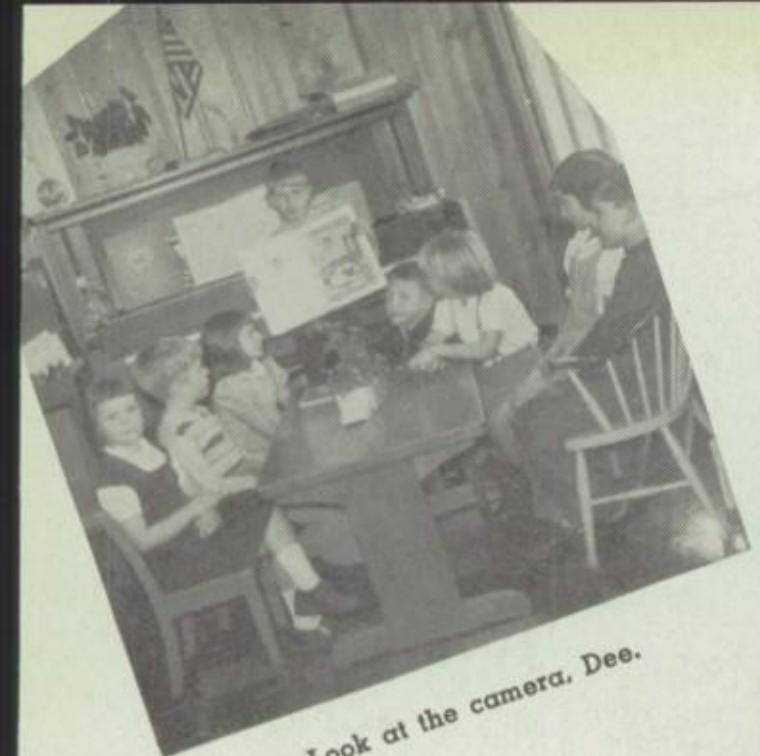

If you were to go 'way down to the end of the long Lower School hall and open the door to the right, nine chances out of ten you would find these young people carrying on some activity very similar to that shown in the picture above. Not to be outdone by the Nursery School, the Kindergarten also builds with blocks, and paints, while it works with clay. This year saw a large mural, entitled "The Kindergarten Train," painted by them. All fall they dug for moles, with not too much success but with great energy. They celebrated Hallowe'en by making pumpkin faces, and they became farmers around Thanksgiving by planting sweet potatoes all over the room. With this fine list of accomplishments we are sure M.V.'s 1950-51 Kindergarten Class will be a splendid and well-knit organization in the years to come.

FIRST GRADE

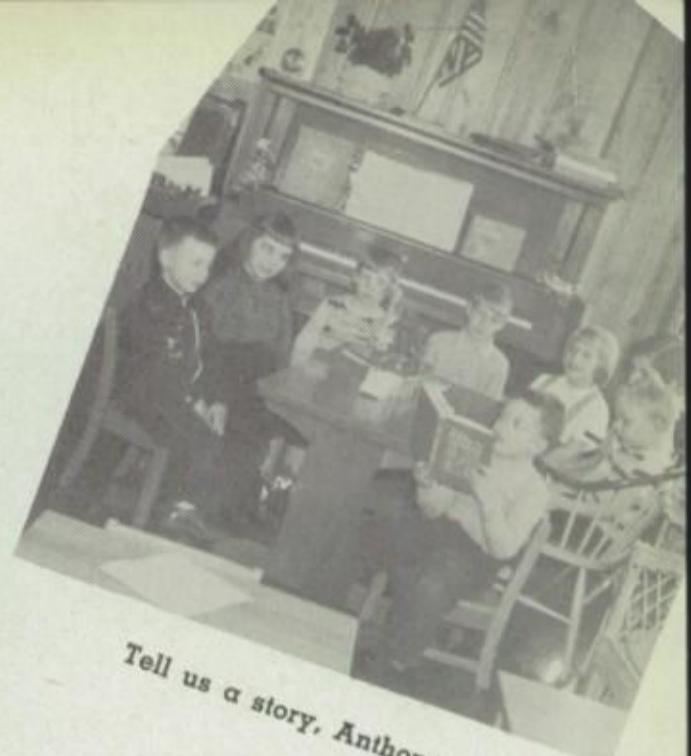

Everybody loves to get away from school, and in this respect the First Grade is no different from others. This year our first grade learned by "going places and seeing things." Each month the class went to the Art Museum where they learned about paintings and sculpture; and through a trip to the library they found out how to secure their own library cards. The Spring brought a trip to a farm to see baby animals. They also visited a large fire station in Toledo, where they were shown "the works." Their last trip, and possibly the best, was to the Zoo where they took special delight in watching the monkeys. This trip was climaxed by a big picnic. When the First Grade was in school they enjoyed their sports period best of all, as you can tell from the picture. This group did not believe in all play and no work, however, and took great pride in the number of books they read. We are very glad to welcome this class officially to the Lower School.

SECOND GRADE

The gift of the classes of '48 and '49 has not just been for the use and enjoyment of the Upper School, but for the Lower School as well. As you can see, the Second Grade finds the picnic grounds and its surrounding area a fine place to play. Whenever they aren't busily involved in one of their many other activities, they may be found across the ravine where they spend their happiest school hours. Here, industrious classroom workers can relax from the ardors that follow naturally when approaching higher education. Arithmetic and spelling hold no fears for these out-of-doors people, who play strenuously for awhile, to resume indoor activities with vim.

SECOND GRADE

This year's Second Grade was unusually large in number for Maumee Valley, but certainly wasn't any different from the rest of our lower school in the amount of work accomplished. Like grades one to six, they too were busy learning their three R's. Aside from this they occupied their time with extra-curricular activities. They made monthly trips to the Art Museum where they learned about Renoir, Gaugin, Van Gogh, and other famous artists. When they were in school they often put some of their knowledge gained at the museum to work, by means of chalk drawings, modeling with clay, or painting. Somehow, artistic work is more meaningful when done under the inspiration of the world's greatest modern artists, and even a second-grader knows this.

The jungle gym, swings, and teeter-totters have provided a great deal of enjoyment for our active third-graders. Whenever good weather and Mrs. Nehring smiled upon them, they would hurry across the ravine with all the intensity of their young spirits. Oddly enough the weather, and especially Mrs. Nehring, did not allow too much of this, for they have a very impressive list of other accomplishments. Hallowe'en found them very busy making papier maché and paper plate masks. At the beginning of the year they arranged a beautiful collection of Indian relics from the Trumble Farm, too. Everyone seemed to be interested in art, and in this respect the Third Grade was no different. They made blue-print leaves, and also evinced special interest in the first of the three R's—Reading. Their library was enlarged when they brought some of their own books to school, and not to be outdone by the high school, they also started vocabulary books. By now we must agree that they are really ready to take that fourth step up the ladder called Education.

FOURTH GRADE

These young people did not by any means spend all of their time on outside activities, for they learned their lessons, too. There were not many things, however, that they learned in the way that most folks do. Take their "fractions" for instance. Instead of just doing a lot of problems in the book to learn them, they made pictures illustrating what fractions really were. The field of Interior Decorating was entered by them when they made drapes for their room with scenes from their social studies' books. In this way they learned their social studies better, and had fun too. In the field of Science they didn't just read about spiders, but they went on spider trips to actually see and study these insects. They didn't just learn about sandstone in rocks, or about starches and fats in foods; instead they made experiments testing these products. A new world has indeed unfolded this year for Grade Four.

FOURTH GRADE

During the first half of the year there were quite a few people who received a slight shock as they walked into the Fourth Grade room. No, the students in Grade Four hadn't started taking in laundry. Those sheets and blankets hanging over wires at the back of the room were a very important part of the scenery for a play they were putting on. This play was written by one of the students, and became one of the Fourth Grade's more important extra-curricular activities. Although the play was one of their better products, it certainly was not the only one. They also made displays of their hobbies, which they are standing before, in the picture above. Every holiday found their room beautifully decorated by their own skillful hands. Fourth Grade parents say, "School was never like this in our day."

FIFTH GRADE

The six students who make up the Fifth Grade discovered an interesting and exciting way to learn their country's history. Through trips to Greenfield Village, along the Maumee, and to the Art Museum, they saw for themselves a Colonial Village, where the French and Indian Wars were fought, and learned the story of glass and earthenware. In music classes they memorized early folk-songs, and in art they made maps from clay and painted their favorite early American heroes. On sunny days it was always a treat for them to hold classes outside, as they are doing in this picture. Learning history was not their only activity, however; they also had a library for avid readers, a "Poets' Corner," and the opportunity to make real scientific experiments and see movies and slides. They joined up with the Sixth Grade to present the Christmas operetta. Having accomplished all this with great gusto, the Fifth Grade, although small in size, proved it was mighty in influence.

SIXTH GRADE

Gaining knowledge and a little more homework isn't the only way that the Sixth Grade has prepared for life in the higher ranks of Maumee Valley. They have gone Upper-Schoolish and elected officers. Ann Bell rules the class with her gavel, and the able assistance of vice-president Jenny Rheinfrank. Priscilla Lamb takes the minutes on these prize meetings, and John Patton is the rich man in the class, being the treasurer. They have solved the problem of noisy class meetings by giving John Patton another office as sergeant-at-arms. He is commonly known as "the bouncer", and members of the class fear his iron arm. With all this preparation for higher education, we can rest assured that this year's Sixth Grade will be a fine addition to M.V.'s Upper School.

SIXTH GRADE

Recent world affairs have brought increasing importance to the United Nations. That is the reason that the Sixth Grade, under the direction of Mr. Kline decided that they were going to understand the U.N., even if it took all year, which it did. They learned about the U.N. from A to Z. In fact they were so interested in it that they couldn't pull themselves away from its study even for their pictures. I'm afraid, however, you are getting the idea that studying the U.N. was all they did. Quite the contrary, for they went on a trip to Greenfield Village and Edison Institute in the fall, and to Ohio caverns and stone quarries in the spring. The Christmas operetta had their helping hand, as did many other school projects. This class isn't going to be dumped into the Upper School completely unprepared, for they have acquired plenty of knowledge through their extra-curricular, school, and homework this year.

TO THE SENIORS

Remember the memorable day when the Seniors received their privileges? That's when the Juniors started thinking about the big vacuum that would soon occur, and how difficult it would be to fill their places.

Who could ever put on such a beautiful prom? Or, glance through all the old Weather-vanes, did any compare to the 1950 book? Could we ever have had a jollier or more efficient president of the student council than Brad? And could any boys meet the sturdiness and genius of the Senior boys on the football team? Remember those runs of Jerry's, and the way Dave used to pick the ball right out of the air on a pass, and travel fifty yards for a touchdown? No, we can never forget them, nor the girls who battled for Blue-White victories. Who could replace Nancy, Susie, Audrey, or Barb in varsity hockey or basketball?

And who could take Jim's place at the piano, Sara's in the art room, or Roslyn's at knitting? In days to come we will all remember Ballantyne's and Bud's clever remarks that seemed to brighten up every class, assisted by Glenn's sense of humor. We will chuckle aloud and say that no one ever dared to equal Alice's pep or Ann and Kay's memorable smiles, and will agree that we all realized no other class could ever have had the foreign influence and distinction of someone like Andy.

Yes, the 1951 Seniors deserved their privileges the first day of the second semester, because of their manners, their scholarship, their helpfulness, and the everlasting friendliness that has made them unforgettable in all our minds.

SENIOR PROPHECY

As I was walking down lower Cherry Street, thinking about my work at the Mission, I spotted one of my old schoolmates with glee. As soon as he had wiped the glee spots off himself, Brad told me the sad story of how idolizing women had led him to drink and ruin. After persuading him to try a week with the Mission and to start anew, I grabbed my year's pay of five dollars and decided to get away from it all.

I took a fast Flying Saucer to Detroit, and there on the landing field I saw a large sign which read:

DO FLYING SAUCERS MAKE YOU NERVOUS?
TRAVEL THE SAFE OLD-FASHIONED WAY
MAGIC CARPETS HERE
HASSAN BEN WASHED LATELY INC.

And sitting tailor fashion under the sign I recognized suntanned Bud Forster. Unfortunately I had never learned Arabic so I couldn't ask him how business was going.

I looked in my little black book to see whom I knew in Detroit, and I remembered Susie Draper who was operating a booming Used Car business. I called her up and she met me to have dinner. After dinner I asked her what was happening in Detroit these days. She thought a moment and then suggested that we watch the Rockettes who were playing.

As we watched the show from excellent first row seats, I began to notice that the fifth from the left was strangely familiar. Of course! Alice McAuley! After the show I went to her dressing room to talk to her. As it turned out she was going on vacation and decided to come with me, as I had decided to look up the rest of my schoolmates.

From Detroit we went to Chicago, and as we stepped off the train a familiar voice greeted us.

"Hey, Babe—what're you doing in Chi?" We turned to greet Glenn, who was getting on the same train we were leaving.

"Sorry I can't see you—I'm on my way around the world—I married a millionaire, you know."

We didn't know, but we were glad to hear it, although some people get all the luck.

It was election time in Chi, and we were startled to see a familiar face on many posters.

"VOTE HONEST JIM EVANS FOR MAYOR"

I had always wanted to see the University of Chicago, so we went to visit it and promptly got lost. We had become separated and, thoroughly confused, I wandered into a classroom—empty except for a professor at the desk.

"Good heavens!" I exclaimed. "You aren't teaching English!"

"The heck I ain't," Jerry replied indignantly. "Read it off the door if you don't believe me."

At this point Alice burst through the door.

"Where have you been—?"

"Alice, look who's teaching English!"

"Oh, hi Jerry—that's nothing. Wait 'till you see who's teaching Physics."

I followed Alice to another building, and we stood outside an open classroom door and, awed, watched Audrey Bach, amid broken chalk and blackboards, explain electrolysis.

We left the school and decided to go to New York where Alice would rejoin the Rockettes. We decided to fly, and got to the airport ahead of time. As we were waiting for our flight to be called, we heard a cheery "Hi, you kids!" and there in army fatigue suit stood Barbara Lehman. She explained that she was a mechanic and was finding her work simply fascinating.

We couldn't talk long, but on the Flying Saucer we met another friend. Kay Mulholland was our courteous stewardess. She said she loved the job, but passengers! Ugh! She told us to come up front and talk to the pilot, who turned out to be Dave Adkins. He said he loved to fly, it reminded him of sailing, and then he gave us some addresses to look up in New York.

I said goodbye to Al and remembered Dave's addresses. I found myself at the door of a Detective Agency. Then I noticed the name on the door. Ann McAuley. I went in, and inquired of the six foot male secretary where Ann was. He replied that she was out on a case. I left my name and looked up the next number.

It was an old house, and I sniffed at an aroma which sifted out through the keyhole. Incense and spaghetti. I rang the bell. Roz opened the door. She was dressed in an Oriental fashion, but she was still knitting argyles. She called to Nancy who was in the kitchen making her famed Italian spaghetti, and the two explained that they had hit upon the idea of going into business together—a fortune teller to add atmosphere to Baird's Spaghetti Parlor—and were making oodles of money.

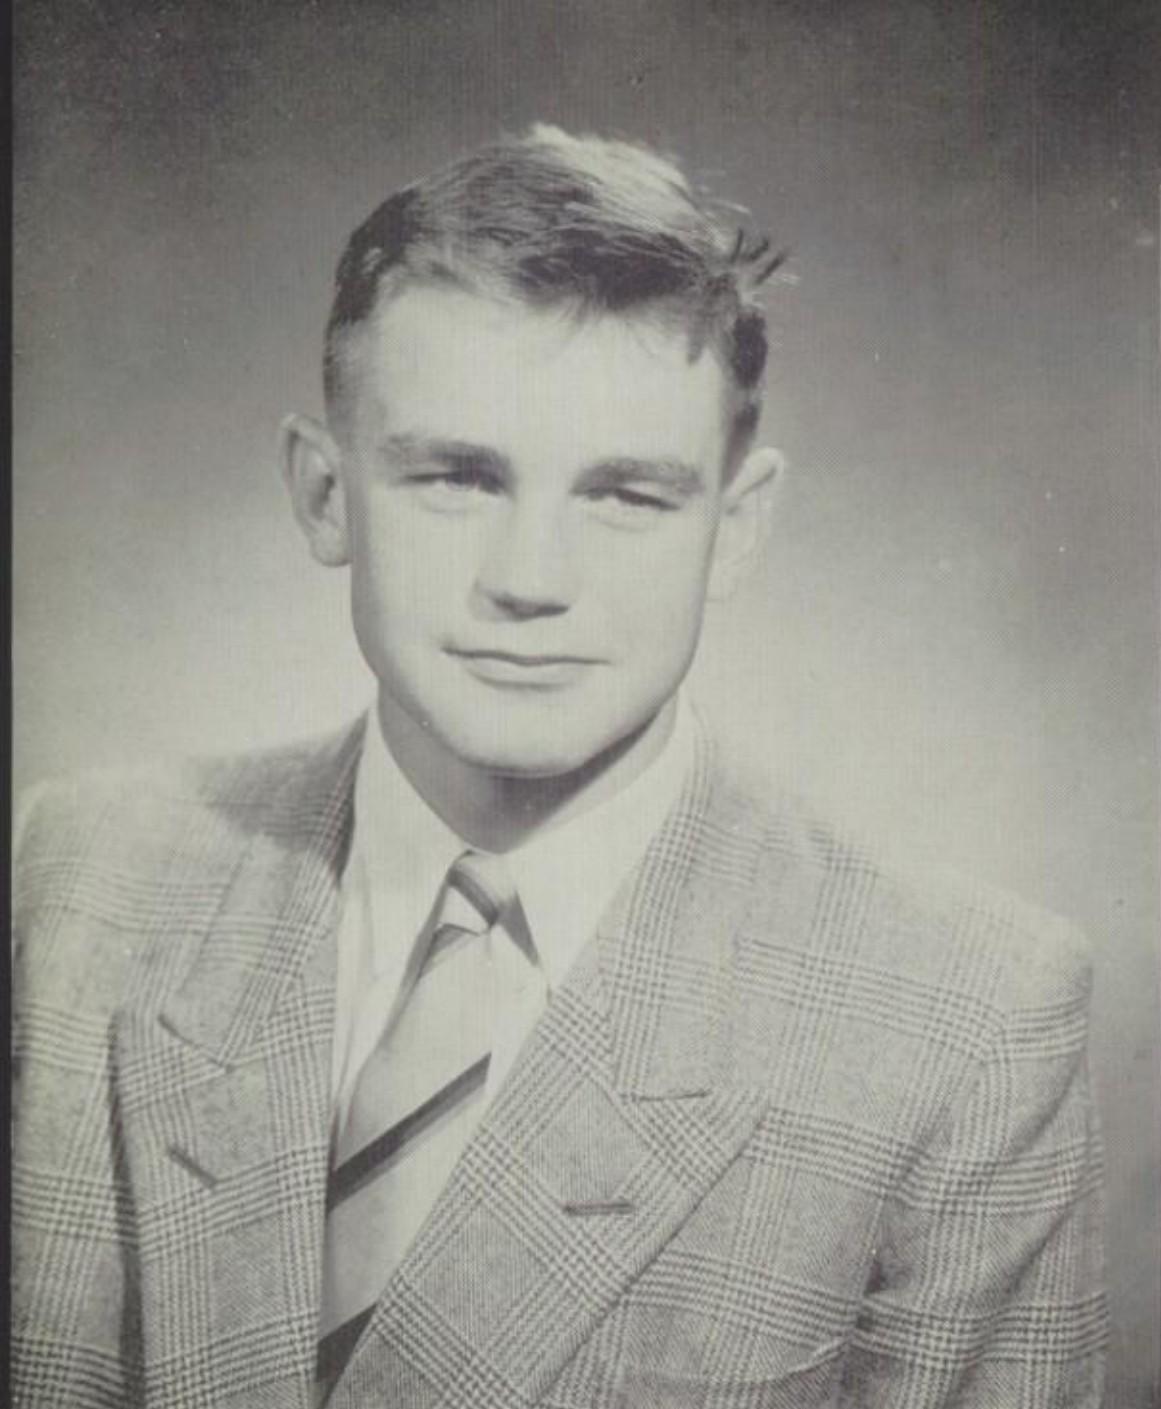

I told them what I knew of the rest of the class, and we agreed that we always did have diverse talents.

I was now ready to return. I had seen everyone of my class but one, and that was a pretty good average.

I hailed a cab, and as it pulled over to the curb I knew I could go home with a clear conscience.

Dave told me he'd taken the job because it was the only job he knew in which his ability to drive and his sense of humor were duly appreciated.

Ah me, what a century I had passed through. What a period of surprise, and excitement at looking up old friends. I hugged my Social Security card a little closer and thought brightly of returning to the little red cross of the Mission. Life could be so very worthwhile.

BOYS' SPORTS

Getting off to a winning start, this year's football team, though only a handful of boys, won four straight games under their able coach, Les Pursell. The highlight of the season was the Ottawa Hills bout.

Playing the next game on their own field, the team was set back for their first defeat by Anthony Wayne. Then, fighting through their last game at Holland in a snow storm, they were again beaten, this time in the last seconds of the fray.

This year's team has worked hard and has a lot to look forward to in the future. Though it is losing four starting seniors it has plenty of material left, and a fighting spirit that will be sure to carry it on to new victories, and—we hope—an undefeated 1951.

KNEELING: Fritz Bell, Sam Roose (Blue Captain), Harry Falconer, Jack Foster, Anthony Plutynski.

SEATED: Joe Starritt, Fritz Betz, Hans Jones, Willard Green (White Captain), Bill Dudley.

JUNIOR HIGH FOOTBALL

The Junior High team started out as two six-man teams, the Blue and the White. As most of the boys wanted an eleven-man squad, they organized a sand-lot team that was not sponsored by the school.

The first game was played with Maumee at our field. After a long sixty-minute battle, Maumee Valley emerged from the field with a 14 to 7 victory in their hands.

The next game was with Perrysburg at Perrysburg. This game was better organized than the first, but the team was still not sponsored by the school. Maumee Valley Country Day was victorious and when the last quarter was over they were handed a 7 to 5 victory.

The last game that was played was another match with Maumee, at their field. Maumee fought a very hard battle. Our Maumee Valley Country Day team was again victorious and won that game 7 to 6.

Up to this time the team was uncoached, but after the last game Mr. Kline took it over. He worked for about a month trying to get a game with some other school. As it was already late in the season, most of the neighboring teams had finished their year. Mr. Kline tried for another week but finally had to give up. The team, although uncoached, had fine spirit and morale. All the players are now looking forward to an even better season with more games and finer organization next year.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Waiting until gridiron season was over, the basketball team composed for the most part of football players, started practices. With a limited amount of varsity material Coach Pursell formed a small but cheerful squad, and started work.

The team was handicapped, since two or three substitutes were all they had. Going was pretty tough. We played a country school named Weston, on our own floor, for the first game and Maumee Valley won easily. The next contest was away from home with an always strong team, Ottawa Hills. This time Maumee Valley lost for the first time. Playing some of the strongest schools around, the Mohawks came out on the short end of the score in their following games.

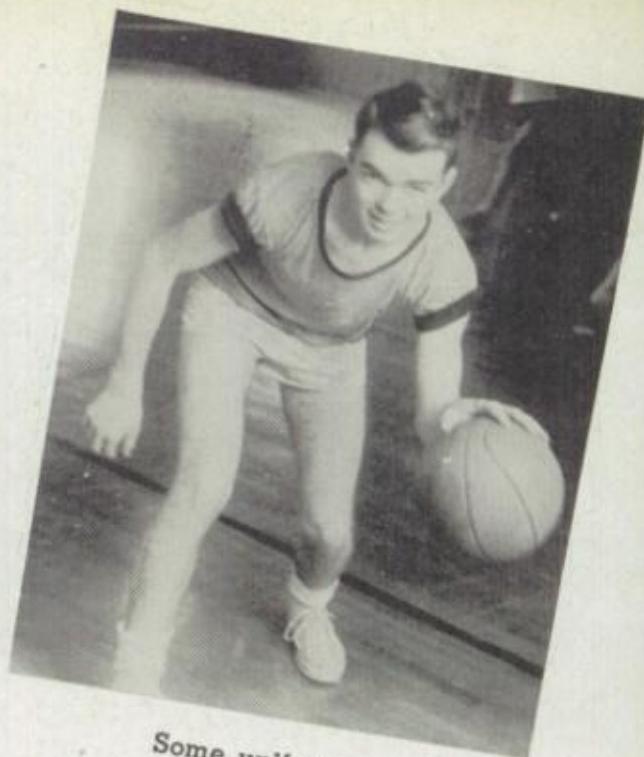

All but three of the starting five will return next year. This should certainly help to make a strong and winning team for the following season. The team was well supported at all the games by large and enthusiastic crowds.

Dead-eye.

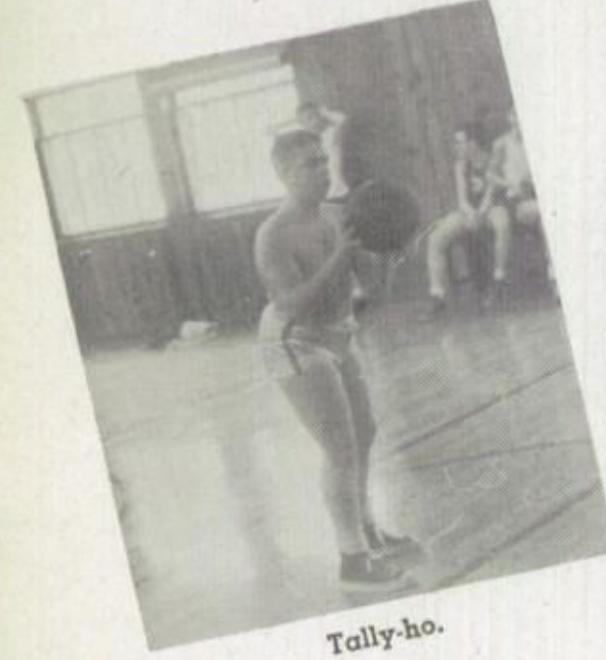

The big boss.

Some uniform.

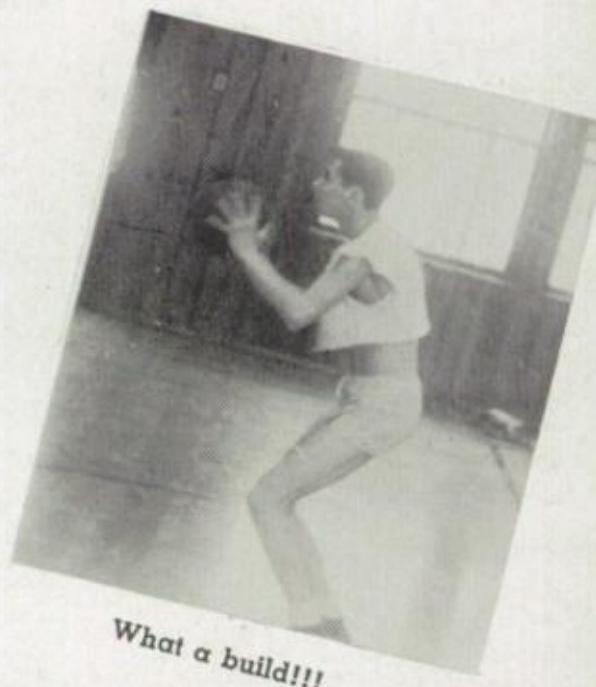

Head itch, Jim?

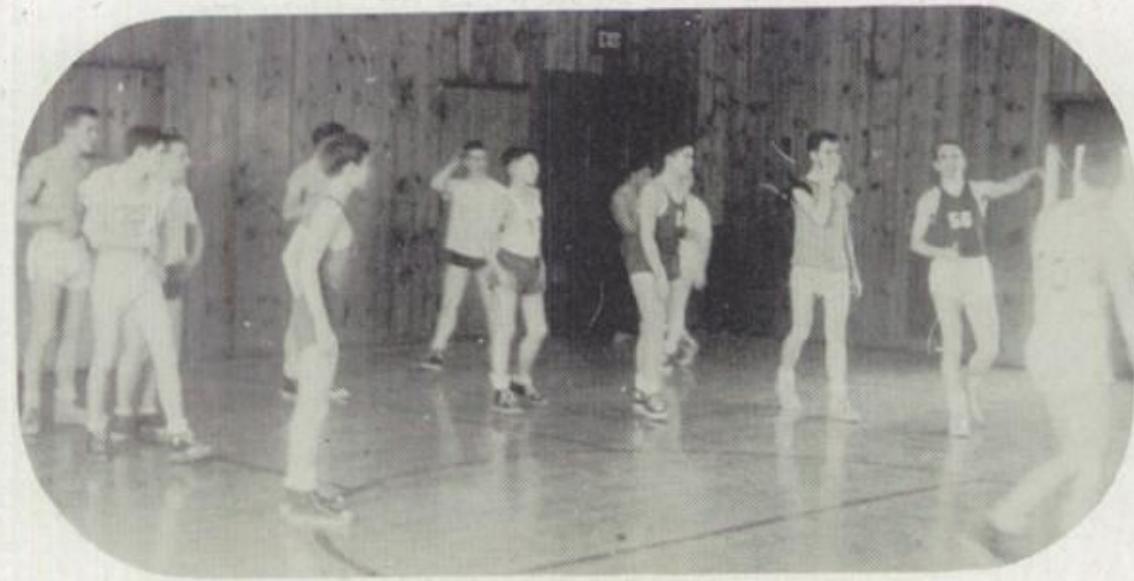

Tally-ho.

Ambition.

What a build!!!

Champions in their own league.

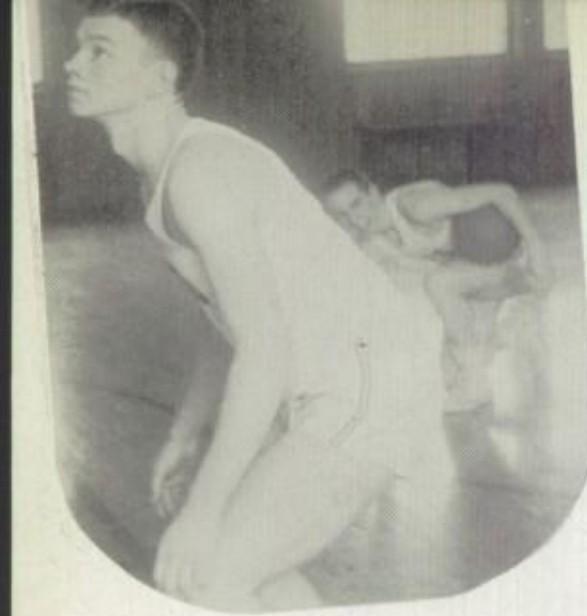

SECOND ROW, left to right: Hank Pahl, Steve Meloy, Bruce Liebenthal, Bill Lehman, Pete Edgar, Dick Warner.
FIRST ROW: Ted Sweeny, Bruce Hankins, Jim Kransberger, Jim Sweeny.

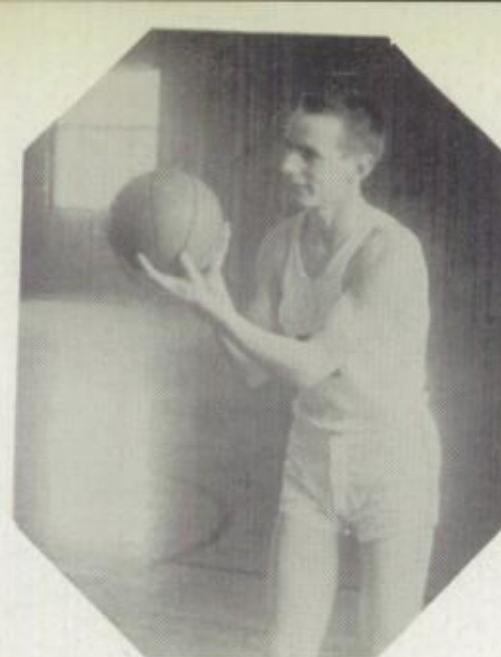

JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL

The reserve team, starting practice at the same time as the varsity under the same coach, Mr. Pursell, had a number of boys to choose from, and managed to fill all positions with some to spare. Most of their practices were held with the varsity. Besides their scheduled games they helped prepare the Regulars by scrimmaging against them frequently.

Winning their first game against Weston, they were defeated in their following games. In a game against Holland the reserves played a double overtime, but were not lucky enough to take this one as a win. Most of their games were close and they deserve a lot of credit for the way they played.

A TRADITION OF NEW DEVELOPMENT

Backed by a tradition of new development, the name Owens-Illinois today stands for quality products.

The history of Owens-Illinois is highlighted by developments which have made material contributions to better living.

The invention of the Owens bottle machine in 1904 by Michael J. Owens, one of the Company's founders, made it possible to mass produce low-cost glass containers.

Glass tumblers and other tableware are plentiful and inexpensive today because in 1906 Libbey Glass developed techniques for making them automatically.

Kaylo calcium silicate building and insulating products, first introduced by Owens-Illinois in 1943, make buildings warmer and more fireproof.

Many people enjoy better television today because in 1949 Owens-Illinois developed the rectangular all-glass bulb which makes possible better television pictures and smaller cabinets.

These are but a few of the developments which are reflected in products that the Company produces. More could be mentioned and there will be many more in the future.

A continuous program of research and development benefits the public as well as Owens-Illinois, a name that stands for quality products.

It is given to only a few to use their life span to benefit all generations to come after them... Such was the gift of Thomas Alva Edison, pioneer in applying electricity to better the lot of mankind.

We are proud to bear his name

• Only a holder of the original Edison license may use the name "Edison" as part of its corporate title. It is the mark of a pioneer. Toledo Edison, a business-managed, tax-paying electric company, is proud to be so honored... In this our 50th Anniversary Year we renew our pledge to serve our customers to the very best of our ability.

In modern homes you can enjoy the year-around comfort—and the fuel savings—of Fiberglas* Building insulation. Your range, refrigerator, water heater and other appliances are more efficient because they use Fiberglas Appliance Insulations. Your beautiful glass curtains will be completely fire-proof—and can be washed and re-hung without ironing in 7 quick minutes, if they are Fiberglas Coronized* Marquisettes. Your house, using modern forced warm air heating, will be cleaner, less of a burden on you, with Fiberglas Dust-Stop* Filters. And your electrical wiring and appliances will serve you longer for their Fiberglas Insulation, or you may use plastic products that are stronger because they contain Fiberglas reinforcements.

OWENS-CORNING
FIBERGLAS

*Fiberglas (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.) and Dust-Stop are trade-marks of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation for products made of or with glass fibers. Coronize, Coronized, and Coronizing are trademarks of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation.

In modern buildings—schools, auditoriums, field houses, office buildings, churches, hospitals, stores, and factories—Fiberglas Products contribute better performances, longer life, fire-safety. Acoustical products to quiet noise, improve hearing; curtains and draperies that cannot burn or rot; insulation for the roof, the boiler, the air-conditioning ducts, the piping, that really saves wasted heat; low-temperature insulations for cold storage services; electrical insulations for wires, cables, transformers, and motors; and even coated glass fabrics for awnings, folding doors and upholstery uses are among the many contributions made by Fiberglas materials to better structures.

Frost hasn't blocked the view through this Thermopane window even in coldest winter, and the family can sit comfortably right next to it while eating. Installed in 1946 in a northern Illinois farm home.

Bring Views IN...Shut Cold OUT

Those big, view-framing windows you want call for *Thermopane insulating glass . . . for clear vision, heating economy and greater year-round comfort.

In winter especially, you'll notice the difference this double-glass window makes. It cuts heat loss, saves fuel. Helps keep windows clear of frost, helps protect sills and walls from dripping moisture.

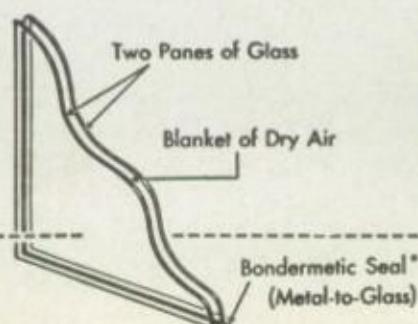

And—there's no "low-comfort zone" next to windows of Thermopane. Its sealed-in blanket of dry air keeps the inner pane near room temperature . . . eliminates the chilly drafts you feel near single-glass windows. With Thermo- pane, your entire room stays warmer in winter. Cooler in summer, too. For Thermopane stays in the year 'round . . . saves you all the work and bother of storm sash.

In new or remodeled homes, Thermopane provides the built-in insulation large glass areas should have in cold climates. It's the best way to insulate double-hung and casement as well as picture windows. For building economy, it is made in over 80 standard sizes, available through glass and building supply distributors and dealers. For complete information, write for our Thermopane book.
